'Now you together are Christ's body'

1 Corinthians 12:27

Now you together are Christ's body, and his members.

It is your mystery which lies on the altar.

When you stretch out your hands to receive the Eucharist you hear the words 'The Body of Christ' and you answer 'Amen'.

So, be the body of Christ.
that your Amen may be true.

St Augustine

CELEBRATION OF THE IMMACULATE HEART OF MARY

Next Saturday 25th there will be Mass at 10:00am at our Killara church to celebrate the festival of the Immaculate Heart of Mary, which has the rank of a Solemnity in our parish since it is the patronal feast of our Killara church.

TODAY IS THE SOLEMNITY OF THE MOST HOLY BODY AND BLOOD OF CHRIST ('CORPUS CHRISTI'):

Just as today's Feast of the Blessed Trinity is celebrated one week after the end of the Easter Season because it is in the Easter mystery that we experience God as Father, Son and Spirit, so the Sunday following Trinity Sunday is always the feast of the Eucharist because it is in the Eucharist that we experience our Triune God and the mystery of the Easter death and Resurrection of Jesus.

A crowd of bellringers... !

Our belltower's final participation in the recent ANZAB weekend was a session of open ringing last Monday to which all ringers were invited.

Nearly 30 ringers from across Sydney and the whole of Australia turned up. Pictured to the left is the queue waiting to get a turn!

It was a vibrant hour and a half and our tower, with its unusual location for the ringers to stand, caused much bellringing chatter and a good time was had by all!

Pope apologises to Comboni survivors....

by Christopher Lamb

Pope Francis has asked for forgiveness from a group of UK and Irish sex abuse survivors during what has been described as an emotional meeting in the Vatican's apostolic palace.

The group, who met with Francis on 13 June, attended St Peter Claver College in Mirfield, West Yorkshire, where widespread sexual abuse is detailed to have occurred during the 1960s and 70s. The college was a junior seminary, a secondary-level boarding school for boys who had expressed an interest in the priesthood, and it was run by the Verona Fathers, an Italian religious order known as the Comboni Missionaries.

Their meeting with Francis is a landmark moment for the group in their years-long struggle to have their suffering recognised by the Comboni Order who have continually refused to meet with the survivors or officially acknowledge that abuse took place. The 13 June meeting is the first one between this Pope and a group of UK and Irish abuse victims.

Bede Mullen, the spokesman of the Comboni Survivors Group, told The Tablet that the Pope was "visibly shaken and upset" by what he heard during the discussions and on two occasions he asked for forgiveness for what had taken place. "He asked for forgiveness for himself and for the Church, and that to me was genuine," Mr Mullen said.

Mr Mullen added that the Pope said he would personally ring the leader of the Comboni order instructing them to meet the group and that any meeting should take place without lawyers present.

The Pope met with the eight survivors in the Vatican, spending an hour and half listening to their experiences with the help of a translator. He also met with some of their spouses. The group was accompanied during the meeting by the Bishop of Leeds, Marcus Stock, and the Cardinal Archbishop of Westminster, Vincent Nichols, President of the Bishops' Conference of England and Wales. Francis's decision to meet the group in the Apostolic Palace, which is where he normally receives heads of state, suggests a concern about the lack of pastoral care the group has been shown by the Church. The Pope has been made aware of how the Comboni order has responded to the group.

One of the survivors, Mark Murray, who had gone on to become a member of the Comboni order, explained the impact of the meeting.

"I came out of the meeting with a great deal of hope," he said. "I have always struggled to find hope after what happened to us as children...[but] I came out hopeful that change is going to happen."

The former students of the junior seminary have provided extensive evidence about the sexual and spiritual abuse that took place in Mirfield, and have also spoken about the devastating long-term toll it has had on their lives. One of the group, Chris Speight, handed a letter about his life story to the Pope explaining that he is a divorced gay man who was previously married to a woman. Various priests, he said, had told him that he could not receive communion because he was divorced and because he was gay. As a result, for 26 years he didn't go to Church.

"The last two words that Pope Francis said to me as he shook my hand was 'take communion'," Mr Speight said with tears in his eyes.

Bishop Stock has taken the lead in accompanying the men as his former seminary is located in his diocese and he and Cardinal Nichols had written to the Pope asking that the leadership of the Combonis be "held accountable" and make an "appropriate response" to the survivors.

The bishop, who is Vice-Chair of the National Catholic Safeguarding Commission, has offered what has been described as a "full and heartfelt apology" to the group on the 25 June 2021, and was the first time that a senior figure in the Church had acknowledged the abuse.....

Bishop Stock told The Tablet that the meeting with Francis was a continuation of the meeting he had held with the group in 2021. He said he sought to offer an apology to the survivors in 2021 because the leadership of the Combonis had "failed" to adequately or properly apologise for the abuse that took place. He described the group of men as "very brave" and an "inspiration to me."

Bishop Stock has unsuccessfully tried to organise a meeting between the survivors and the Comboni order and has described the refusal to engage as a form of continuous abuse. Francis' meeting with survivors will put the Comboni leadership under intense pressure to change their approach. One of the group, Jim Kirby, said that the Pope's pledge to call Fr Tesfaye Tadesse Gebresilasie, the Superior General of the order was very significant. "If you are in a company and the Chairman calls you there's a problem down the line. I am very confident that something will happen and the Combonis will react to this.".....

Francis has emphasised the importance of accompanying abuse victims, whom he has met regularly throughout his pontificate, and listening to the stories of victims is a central part of the Church's safeguarding practice. Archbishop Scicluna said in 2019 that the suffering of survivors are the "open wounds of Jesus Christ that we have inflicted upon his body."

Food for the soul ...

"Five loaves and two fish are all we have, unless we ourselves go and buy food for all these people." (Lk 9:12)
CARING FOR OUR SOUL

What does it profit you if you gain the whole world but suffer the loss of your own soul?

Jesus taught that and, I suspect, we generally don't grasp the full range of it meaning. We tend to take Jesus' words to mean this: what good is it if someone gains riches, fame, pleasure, and glory and then dies and goes to hell? What good is earthly glory or pleasure if we miss out on eternal life?

Well, Jesus' teaching does mean that, no question, but there are other lessons in this teaching that have important things to teach us about health and happiness already here in this life. How do we lose our souls? What does it mean "to lose your soul" already in this world? What is a soul and how can it be lost?

Since a soul is immaterial and spiritual it cannot be pictured. We have to use abstract terms to try to understand it. Philosophers, going right back to Aristotle, have tended to define the soul as a double principle inside every living being: for them, the soul is both the principle of life and energy inside us as well as the principle of integration. In essence, the soul is two things: It's the fire inside us giving us life and energy and it's the glue that holds us together. While that sounds abstract, it's anything but that because we have first-hand experience of what this means.

If you have ever been at the bedside of a dying person, you know exactly when the soul leaves the body. You know the precise moment, not because you see something float away from the body, but rather because one minute you see a person, whatever her struggle and agony, with energy, fire, tension in her body and a minute later that body is completely inert, devoid of all energy and life. Nothing animates it anymore. It becomes a corpse. As well, however aged or diseased that body might be, until the second of death it is still one integrated organism. But at the very second of death that body ceases to be one organism and becomes instead a series of chemicals which now begin to separate and go their own ways. Once the soul is gone, so too are gone all life and integration. The body no longer contains any energy and it's no longer glued together.

And since the soul is a double principle doing two things for us, there are two corresponding ways of losing our souls. We can have our vitality and energy go dead or we can become unglued and fall apart, petrification or dissipation, in either case we lose our souls.

If that is true, then this very much nuances the question of how we should care for our souls. What is healthy food for our souls? For instance, if I am watching television on a given night, what's good for my soul? A religious channel? A sports channel? A mindless sitcom? The nature channel? Some iconoclastic talk-show? What's healthy for my soul?

This is a legitimate question, but also a tricky one. We lose our soul in opposite ways and thus care of the soul is a refined alchemy that has to know when to heat things up and when to cool things down: what's healthy for my soul on a given night depends a lot upon what I'm struggling with more on that night: am I losing my soul because I'm losing vitality, energy, hope, and graciousness in my life? Am I growing bitter, rigid, sterile, becoming a person who's painful to be around? Or, conversely, am I full of life and energy but so full of it that I am falling apart, dissipating, losing my sense of self? Am I petrifying or dissipating? Both are a loss of soul. In the former situation, the soul needs more fire, something to rekindle its energy. In the latter case, the soul already has too much fire; it needs some cooling down and some glue.

This tension between the principle of energy and the principle of integration within the human soul is also one of the great archetypal tensions between liberals and conservatives. In terms of an oversimplification, but a useful one, it's true to say that liberals tend to protect and promote the energy-principle, the fire, while conservatives tend to protect and promote the integration-principle, the glue. Both are right, both are needed, and both need to respect the other's instinct because the soul is a double principle and both these principles need protection.

After we die we can go to heaven or hell. That's one way of speaking about losing or saving our souls. But Christian theology also teaches that heaven and hell start already now. Already here in this life, we can weaken or destroy the God-given life inside us by either petrification or dissipation. We can lose our souls by not having enough fire or we can lose them by not having enough glue.

Hymns for<sup>4</sup> Corpus Christi

ENTRANCE: SONG OF THE BODY OF CHRIST

Refrain: We come to share our story,
we come to break the bread,
we come to know our rising from the dead.

1. We come as your people, we come as your own,
united with each other, love finds a home.
2. Bread of life and cup of promise,
in this meal we all are one.
In our dying and our rising, may your kingdom come.

DEDICATION OF THE GIFTS: WITH A JOYFUL HEART

Refrain: With a joyful heart, O Lord my God, I bring all to you

1. Behold, O Lord, this bread which we now carry to your altar.
This bread will become your body.
2. Behold, O Lord, this wine;
accept and bless it for our gladness.
This wine will become your blood.
- 3 We come to you, O Lord;
we bring the gifts that you have made,
the gifts we return to you

COMMUNION: GODHEAD HERE IN HIDING

1 Godhead here in hiding whom I do adore
Masked by these bare shadows, shape and nothing more.
See, Lord, at thy service low lies here a heart
Lost, all lost in wonder at the God thou art.

2. Seeing, touching, tasting are in thee deceived;
How says trusty hearing? that shall be believed;
What God's Son has told me, take for truth I do;
Truth himself speaks truly or there's nothing true.

3 On the cross thy Godhead made no sign to men;

Here thy very manhood steals from human ken:
Both are my confession, both are my belief,
And I pray the prayer of the dying thief.

4 I am not like Thomas, wounds I cannot see,
But can plainly call thee Lord and God as he:
This faith each day deeper be my holding of,
Daily make me harder hope and dearer love.

5 O thou, our reminder of Christ Crucified,
Living Bread, the life of us for whom he died,
Lend this life to me, then; feed and feast my mind,
There be thou the sweetness we were meant to find.

6 Jesus whom I look at shrouded here below,
I beseech thee, send me what I long for so,
Some day to gaze on thee face to face in light
And be blest forever with thy glory's sight. Amen.

St Thomas Aquinas (trans. Gerard Manley Hopkins)

RECESSIONAL: GO NOW YOU ARE SENT FORTH

Go now you are sent forth,
To live what you proclaim;
To show the world you follow Christ
In fact, not just in name.

Go now, you are sent forth
To walk the troubled earth.
To share your faith with all you meet
And prove your real worth.

Go now, you are sent forth
As God's ambassador;
By serving Christ in those we meet
We love him more and more.

Go now, you are sent forth
And Christ goes with you, too.
Today you help his kingdom come
In everything you do.

FR RICHARD ROHR OFM'S MEDITATION . . . SIMPLICITY IS ABOUT FREEDOM

Sister José Hobday (1929–2009) was a modern Franciscan whose life exemplified her faith commitment to activism and contemplation. Editor Mary Ford-Grabowsky described Hobday as:

A Seneca elder, a prominent Roman Catholic leader, and a Franciscan sister who adheres fully to St. Francis's radical ideal of holy poverty. . . . She is also a mystic and contemplative; she is an earth warrior and elder guide on the wisdom path; and above all, she is an impassioned servant of the poor, especially poor Native Americans.

Sister José lives in the maximum simplicity of voluntary poverty in a tiny house in Gallup, New Mexico, surrounded on all sides by Indian reservations and pueblos. As people once flocked to Julian of Norwich's cell or to Dorothy Day's Hospitality House, so people today come to Sister José's warm hearth for spiritual guidance and material help, and no one leaves without assistance. [1]

Hobday took her Franciscan vow of poverty seriously; she did not view it as a burden to be endured but as a pathway to simplicity and freedom:

Simple living is not about elegant frugality. It is not really about deprivation of whatever is useful and helpful for our life. It is not about harsh rules and stringent regulations. To live simply, one has to consider all of these and they may be included to some degree, but simple living is about freedom. It's about a freedom to choose space rather than clutter, to choose open and generous living rather than a secure and sheltered way.

Freedom is about choices: Freedom to choose less rather than more. It's about choosing time for people and ideas and self-growth rather than for maintenance and guarding and possessing and cleaning. Simple living is about moving through life rather lightly, delighting in the plain and the subtle. It is about poetry and dance, song and art, music and grace. It is about optimism and humour, gratitude and appreciation. It is about embracing life with wide-open arms. It's about living & giving with no strings attached. . . .

Simple living is as close as the land on which we stand. It is as far-reaching as the universe that makes us gasp. Simple living is a relaxed grasp on money, things, and even friends. Simplicity cherishes ideas and relationships. They are treasured more because simplicity doesn't cling nor try to possess things or people or relationships. Simplicity frees us within, but it frees others, too. . . . Simple living is a statement of presence. The real me. This simplicity makes us welcome among the wealthy and the poor alike. . . .

We will not be happy living selfishly in a small world. We must live in awareness and in association with the whole real world. Our universe. Our cosmos. Our environment. Our earth. Our air. Our water supply. Our country. Our neighbour. Our car. Our homes. All are part of simple living. [2]

MANY MANY THANKS to Maia Schulze Tsang, our Sacramental Programme Coordinator, for the wonderful ministry she has offered to our families celebrating First Holy Communion this weekend.

Last Monday Maia tested positive to CoVid and despite her intense disappointment at not being with our families and despite being unwell, she has worked tirelessly from isolation this week to complete the preparations for the celebrations and to provide all the required resources and directions for our wonderful volunteers (thank you to them also!) who have stepped in to coordinate things on the day.

We are very blessed to have Maia's loving ministry towards our families and wish her a speedy recovery. We are also blessed to have such a wonderful community from which our volunteers readily accepted the request to step in and fill Maia's shoes on the day (a further tribute to Maia being that it took nine volunteers to cover what she would have done!).

BLAME

To say, 'I did it, it's my fault', requires a great deal of maturity. It presupposes readiness to take responsibility, and that is hard at a time when so many influences push us in the opposite direction, nurturing a litigious mentality that always looks to charge what goes wrong to someone else's account. Brené Brown expounds the dynamics of blaming in this smart little video (<https://brenebrown.com/videos/rsa-short-blame/>), lasting no more than three minutes. It is a help to self-examination. Brown remarks that blame is simply a discharging of discomfort and pain. It has an inverse relationship with accountability. Accountability is by definition a vulnerable process. Blaming meanwhile is lodged in anger. It shuts us off from others instead of opening us to them. And so it is one of the chief reasons why 'we miss our opportunities for empathy'.

APPRECIATING & UNDERSTANDING THE SUNDAY READINGS

To help with this we've a special section on our parish website. If you go to 'Sacraments' → 'Scripture Readings for Sundays' you'll now find not just the links to the Readings themselves for each Sunday, but a section which takes you to a resource containing commentaries on/background to the Readings.

(or simply email accounts@lindfieldkillara.org.au for assistance.

- ◆ The TAP MACHINES are available in our two churches.

WELCOME BACK TO FR THOMAS who has returned after his extended leave We hope that he has had a refreshing break and a good catchup with friends and family in India after the long separation caused by CoVid.

COMMUNITY SAFETY AT OUR MASSES

- ◆ Health regulations suggest that it is advisable to wear a mask where physical distancing can't be maintained - so if it is possible for you please consider continuing to wear a mask for the sake of others.
- ◆ However, for the safety of your fellow communicants and of those distributing Holy Communion, in our parish we require that everyone wears a mask when coming forward to receive Holy Communion. When coming forward to receive Holy Communion (which will be given on the hand only) please keep your mask on, receive the Host on your hand, step well to the side and then lower your mask to receive the Host before replacing the mask and returning to your seat.
