WHY DO WE DO THAT?

Catholic Life Explained

Question:

If we are all meant to be united in Christ, why is there so much division in the Church?

Answer:

Each Sunday we profess our belief in “one, holy, catholic, and apostolic Church.” The Church is one because her source is the Trinity and she is founded by Christ, yet she exists in a fallen world and is made up of imperfect people. Naturally, tensions arise around what we believe: Who is Jesus? How does original sin affect us? How do traditional moral teachings apply in a rapidly changing world? Doctrinal disagreements rarely happen in isolation — they are shaped by their historical, social, and political context.

Throughout history, these tensions have surfaced in significant ways. Martin Luther’s reforms gained traction partly in response to moral failings within the Church. The 1028 schism between East and West emerged after centuries of cultural and political strain.

Division still appears within the Church today, often around pastoral or practical questions rather than doctrine. Should Latin return to the liturgy? How do we best engage young people in our parish? These are not matters of faith, yet they stir strong opinions.

In all this, we can hold fast to Christ’s prayer “that all might be one,” striving for understanding, charity, and respectful dialogue. ©LPi

BRINGING HOME THE GOSPEL

Water is basic for life. We need it for nourishment, for healing, and for cleansing. Water can also take life. Left under water long enough, we die. This is why water is the perfect sign for the sacrament of baptism. Through the waters of baptism, we die to our old self and receive new life in Christ. The church reinforces this imagery of baptism by sprinkling us with holy water at various times through the year, and by placing holy water fonts at church entrances.

Parishioners are also encouraged to take holy water home with them. This is something my husband and I did faithfully for the first few years of our marriage. We had been given a holy water font for our wedding. It hung by the front door of our first few apartments. I don’t know what happened to it after that. The miniature font was a nice reminder that our home was the domestic church. Like the parish church, we dipped our hand and blessed ourselves when we entered or left. I remember dipping my finger in the font to bless my children on their first day of school each year. I continued to bless them as they grew up. I would make a simple Sign of the Cross on their foreheads before big events in their lives like final exams or a long trip. My children are all grown now, and I still bless them. Sometimes they even bless me back.

When we moved into our first house, my mother brought her own holy water on her first visit. Like the holy water used during the dedication of a new church, my mother sprinkled her holy water and blessed each room in our own house church. Blessing the house reminds us that our homes are church, and blessing each other reminds us that we are the embodiment of that church. Holy water is a sign of our new life as part of the body of Christ.

FAMILY RESPONSE:

Have a home blessing. Even if you have already blessed your house, there is nothing wrong with rededicating your space. Assign different rooms to family members. Have them write a prayer appropriate to that room. Use holy water and make sure you take time to bless family members, too.

PERSONAL RESPONSE:

How is your home like church for you and for your family?

SOCIAL JUSTICE GROUP

Northern Beaches Justice and Peace Gathering

Northern Beaches Justice and Peace Gathering was held on Monday 2nd March where about 40 people gathered from all over the northern beaches and beyond to connect and share ideas. It was a wonderful celebration of community uniting for social justice to collaborate for support for issues needing it. We heard from speakers from the Broken Bay Diocese, International Justice Mission, St Vincent de Paul Social Justice NSW as well as other parish social justice groups. There were so many connections made - well done to our own Social Justice Group for hosting this event and providing a delicious supper, dessert, and drinks that help provide a wonderful welcoming atmosphere and excellent hospitality.

Sharing the Gospel

Jesus told the Samaritan woman that when people drink his water they will never be thirsty again. When you are very hot, you would like this kind of water. The water that Jesus gives us to drink is his word which will last forever. It will help us get to heaven. Jesus said that he was the Messiah sent to explain everything. When you want to know the way, Jesus helps you. When you do not understand, Jesus explains it to you.

Prayer

Lord, give me your water to drink.

Mission

I will give a cup of water to my family and friends today.
