Year of JOY

SCRIPTURE COMMENTARY BY BRENDAN BYRNE SJ

The theme linking the First Reading and the Gospel seems to hover between two aspects of salvation that might, at first sight, seem to stand in some tension.

On the one hand, the First Reading (Isaiah 66:18-21) stems from one of the great universalist passages of Second Isaiah where the prophet foresees the outreach of salvation, beyond Israel, to the nations of the world. The nations that once took members of God's people into captivity, will bring them back to Jerusalem in honour. Moreover – and this is truly striking – some members of the nations will become priests and Levites in the Temple. We Christians from the nations of the world, baptised in Christ, are all heirs of this striking promise.

The universalist note is picked up in the concluding sentences of the Gospel (Luke 13:22-30), where Jesus observes that 'people from east and west, from north and south, will come to take their places at the feast in the Kingdom of God.' But now the inclusive vision underwrites the prophetic warning that is the chief point of the entire passage. Those who might consider themselves 'insiders' and so be complacent about their inclusion had better take note. Too late, they may wake up to find themselves excluded, while, to their anguish and chagrin, they see many included whom they would have considered outsiders.

The warning is sparked off by a question about the number who will be saved. Jesus will not respond to speculations in these terms. It is the present, not the future, that will decide the issue. So he turns the question back into a warning not to miss the opportunity while it is still available.

As always, the imagery he appeals to is taken from everyday life. When an entrance is narrow and many are trying to get through (think of people struggling to get into a department store when bargain sales are on), it pays to struggle and get to the front right away. Jesus is not necessarily commending such behaviour. He is simply pointing to common human experience and applying this everyday image to taking advantage of God's generous offer of salvation. In the person and preaching of Jesus this offer is now available but it will not always be there. People cannot just 'coast' into salvation; an effort is required.

The image then alters. It now seems to be that of travellers arriving late at a large household or inn.

Though late, they hope for special consideration on the grounds of being known to the householder. But the lodging is full up with others (the people 'from east and west, ...') who have got in before them; all is barred and locked up for the night. No use, then, standing outside knocking, claiming all kinds of familiarity with the householder. With his lodging satisfactorily full, he doesn't want to know them. Once again, the image plays powerfully upon the feelings of his audience: imagine how you'd feel in that situation – out on the street for the night in a strange city, the door slammed brutally in your face. How you'd envy those ('from east and west, ..') who'd got in before you.

The hospitality of God is ample and generous. In the preaching of Jesus – continued down to our day in the preaching of the Church – we are all invited to the banquet. But the invitation will not be available forever. Human beings can exclude themselves from the banquet by not being prepared to accept the divine hospitality at the time, and in the company, of God's choosing.

Here, once again, we encounter the sense, so strong in Luke's Gospel, that conversion of heart is not something people can afford to put off indefinitely. God's ways are not our ways. Daily the Gospel challenges the narrowness of our thoughts and the limits of our generosity. To allow this to happen is, in effect, to go in by 'the narrow gate', the gate that strips us of the 'baggage' our selfishness makes us acquire. For those prepared to live in this way, the question of salvation barely arises. It can be safely left in the hands of the all-generous God whose only desire in our regard is to call us to the banquet of life.

Pope Leo XIV - Prayer Intention for August For Mutual Coexistence

Let us pray that societies where coexistence seems more difficult might not succumb to the temptation of confrontation for ethnic, political, religious, or ideological reasons .

Blessed Francis Jordan

It is something quite other to see another suffer - one for whom we deeply care. Of all suffering and pain, this is the most difficult to bear, the greatest for the heart to sustain.

RCIA LAUNCH

Thank you to all who have enquired about sharing our Catholic faith! We are pleased to announce that our first RCIA gathering will be held:

7pm, Monday 1st September

JPII Pastoral Centre - 58 Victoria Street East Gosford

Open invitation for all to attend.

Have you ever wondered what's involved in preparing and welcoming new Catholics into our faith family? This year, Fr Greg and our parish RCIA team would like to extend an open invite to any and all who would like to learn about the RCIA. This is an opportunity to join our RCIA enquirers in a show of community support as they begin preparing to receive their Easter Sacraments.

During this one-night-only event, you can learn about the history, stages, rites and topics covered during the preparation and formation for Christian Initiation into the Catholic Church. Our RCIA team are ready and willing to share the ins and outs and answer your questions, helping you be better equipped for when you might be asked: "How does someone become Catholic?" Hope to see you there!

CATHOLICS ARE FORBIDDEN FROM KEEPING ASHES OF CREMATED LOVED ONES

In the Catholic Church, the ashes of a person who has been cremated must be placed in a reverent, sacred place such as a cemetery, mausoleum, or columbarium. The Church teaches that the human body, even after death, retains its dignity and must be treated with respect and care. This belief is rooted in the Christian understanding that the body is a temple of the Holy Spirit and will one day rise again through the resurrection. The Church permits cremation, but only if it is not done as a rejection of the faith in the resurrection of the body. After cremation, the ashes are to be kept together and laid to rest in a sacred location. Keeping ashes at home, scattering them in nature, or dividing them among relatives is not allowed. These practices can lead to a loss of reverence for the remains and may reflect beliefs that are inconsistent with Catholic teaching.

A final resting place in a consecrated space allows the faithful to honor the dead within a community of believers. It also provides a place where family and friends can gather to pray, remember, and express hope in eternal life. Sacred burial places reflect the Church's belief in the communion of saints and the importance of praying for the souls of the departed. In 2016, the Vatican issued guidelines in Ad resurgendum cum Christo, which emphasized that ashes should not be kept in private homes or scattered. By placing ashes in a reverent place, Catholics show respect for both the person who has died and the faith that they lived.

Cf PSALM 85:1-3

Turn your ear, O Lord, and answer me; save the servant who trusts in you, my God.

Have mercy on me, O Lord, for I cry to you all the day long.

FIRST READING

ISAIAH 66:18-21

A reading from the prophet Isaiah

They will gather all of your people from all nations.

The Lord says this: I am coming to gather the nations of every language. They shall come to witness my glory. I will give them a sign and send some of their survivors to the nations: to Tarshish, Put, Lud, Moshech, Rosh, Tubal, and Javan, to the distant islands that have never heard of me or seen my glory. They will proclaim my glory to the nations. As an offering to the Lord they will bring all your brothers, on horses, in chariots, in litters, on mules, on dromedaries, from all the nations to my holy mountain in Jerusalem, says the Lord, like Israelites bringing oblations in clean vessels to the Temple of the Lord. And of some of them I will make priests and Levites, says the Lord.

RESPONSORIAL PSALM

Ps 116. R. Mk 16:15

(R.) Go out to all the world and tell the Good News.

1. O praise the Lord, all you nations, acclaim him all you peoples!

(R.) Go out to all the world and tell the Good News.

2. Strong is his love for us; he is faithful for ever.

(R.) Go out to all the world and tell the Good News.

SECOND READING

HEBREWS 12:5-7, 11-13

A reading from the letter to the Hebrews

The Lord disciplines those he loves. Have you forgotten that encouraging text in which you are addressed as sons? My son, when the Lord corrects you, do not treat it lightly; but do not get discouraged when he reprimands you. For the Lord trains the ones that he loves and he punishes all those that he acknowledges as his sons. Suffering is part of your training; God is treating you as his sons. Has there ever been any son whose father did not train him? Of course, any punishment is most painful at the time, and far from pleasant; but later, in those on whom it has been used, it bears fruit in peace and goodness. So hold up your limp arms and steady your trembling knees and smooth out the path you tread; then the injured limb will not be wrenched, it will grow strong again.

GOSPEL ACCLAMATION

JOHN 14:6

Alleluia, alleluia!

I am the way, the truth, and the life, says the Lord; no one comes to the Father, except through me.

Alleluia!

GOSPEL

LUKE 13:22-30

A reading from the holy Gospel according to Luke

From East and West they will come to take their place in the kingdom of God. Through towns and villages Jesus went teaching, making his way to Jerusalem. Someone said to him, 'Sir, will there be only a few saved?' He said to them, 'Try your best to enter by the narrow door, because, I tell you, many will try to enter and will not succeed.

'Once the master of the house has got up and locked the door, you may find yourself knocking on the door, saying, "Lord, open to us" but he will answer, "I do not know where you come from." Then you will find yourself saying, "We once ate and drank in your company; you taught in our streets" but he will reply, "I do not know where you come from. Away from me, all you wicked men!"

'Then there will be weeping and grinding of teeth, when you see Abraham and Isaac and Jacob and all the prophets in the kingdom of God, and yourselves turned outside. And men from east and west, from north and south, will come to take their places at the feast in the kingdom of God.

'Yes, there are those now last who will be first, and those now first who will be last.'

COMMUNION ANTIPHON

Cf PSALM 103:13-15

The earth is replete with the fruits of your work, O Lord; you bring forth bread from the earth and wine to cheer the heart.
